

The Faculties and Academics

In 2008-09, the various faculties (excluding the medical faculties in New York City) numbered over 1,600. These numbers included full, part-time and acting professors, associate professors, and assistant professors, but excluded those with courtesy, visiting, adjunct, emeritus, or Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) appointments. There were also over 3,000 other academic appointees—lecturers and instructors, scholars and scientists, teaching and postdoctoral associates, research and extension associates, and librarians (excluding the employees in the medical units in New York City).
