The High-Level Ambitions

1. We want to amplify research and scholarship being carried out at Cornell on questions of race, indigeneity and bias

2. We want all Cornellians to be
  - critical thinkers and lifelong learners in all matters that concern race, indigeneity and bias
  - thrive and lead across diverse groups and communities in a multiracial democracy like America’s, where out of many we become one
Three Questions About Research Centers

Why do we have centers?

A center focuses scholarly and public attention on issues and research topics in ways that a department, school, or college cannot.

How do they elevate the quality of scholarship?

They facilitate collaboration by providing infrastructure, programs, and space.

How do they change outside perceptions?

They become go-to authorities offering tangible proof that the University knows what is important and is doing something about it.
Our Peers Understand This

Berkeley Center for Race and Gender
Boston U Center for Antiracist Research
Brown Center for the Study of Race and Ethnicity in America
Chicago Center for the Study of Race, Politics, and Culture
Columbia Center for the Study of Ethnicity and Race
Dartmouth Consortium in the Studies of Race, Migration, and Sexuality
Duke Center for Truth, Racial Healing, and Transformation
Harvard Initiative for Institutional Anti-Racism and Accountability
Johns Hopkins Center for Health Disparities Solutions
Johns Hopkins Hard Histories at Hopkins
Princeton Ida B. Wells Just Data Lab
Rutgers Institute for the Study of Global Racial Justice
Stanford Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity
U Penn Center for the Study of Ethnicity, Race, and Immigration
USC Race and Equity Center
Yale Center for the Study of Race, Indigeneity, and Transnational Migration
Collaboration is in Our DNA

A locally hosted international conference on climate change and indigenous knowledge brought together

1. the American Indian and Indigenous Studies Program
2. the South Asia Program
3. the Department of Natural Resources
4. the Botanical Gardens
5. the University Library
6. the Atkinson Center for Sustainability
7. the Global Development Program
8. the Department of Performing and Media Arts
9. the Judith Reppy Institute for Peace and Conflict Studies
10. the Johnson Museum
Some Attributes of the Center

Theme Years
   Environmental Justice, Public Health and Race, Internet Disparities, etc.

A Pipeline-to-the-Academy Program
   UGrads, Grads, Post-Docs.

An “A.D. White Style” Professors-of-the-Practice Program
   Bringing to campus recognized leaders from the public and civic sectors.

A Deep Collaboration with the Library and other units across campus
   Digital Humanities, Engaged Cornell, etc.
Some Voiced Concerns
The Name – Why It Evolved

September 30 Senate:
“Center for Antiracism”

December 15 Senate:
“The Center for Antiracist, Just, and Equitable Futures”

April 14 Senate:
“The Center for Racial Justice and Equitable Futures”

The name evolved as we learned more about the anticipated scope of the Center’s work and the importance of sending a clear signal to both the academy and the public about that scope. A successful center becomes a go-to authority and at key moments, the face of the university.
The Center Shouldn’t Just Be a “Current Events” Center

Concern over this phrase in the Report:
“... we envision a permanent, institutionally supported unit that responds to in Center must focus instantiations of racism that are brought to the fore by current events while at the same time being a constant, unrelenting advocate for racial equality and healing.”

Response:
This phrase does not imply that the Center’s research directions change from day to day based on the news. Think more along the lines about CAS 2020-21 Lecture Series “Racism in America” that was prompted by protests around the Floyd killing. Also important to note that the text emphasizes the “support [for] long term work.”
The Center Should Not Intensify Competition for $$$

A website critic says

It is reasonable to ask whether cobbling together another center would not be another familiar instance of bolstering the existing system with educational and research activities that fit readily into the established structure.

Another broad concern, evoked by a cursory reference to “competition for a fixed pool of resources,” is the absence from the report of any attention to budgetary adjustments the university, already battered by the pandemic,

Response:

Resource-related questions belong in the “implementation phase.”
The students on the Working Group are extremely interested in the establishment of a cultural center for the BIPOC community modeled after what you see at peer institutions.

This is a worthy goal but somewhat distinct from the idea of a research center.

'Somewhat distinct” because a vibrant research center that has faculty and students inclusively working side-by-side together has a “cultural center” aspect.
