CIDA membership roles and responsibilities

Last Revised: October 6, 2020

- CIDA members represent faculty, research associates, postdocs, staff, graduate and undergraduate students from any college in the university with an interest in digital agriculture who chose to join the Institute.
- Member names and affiliations will be acknowledged on the CIDA web site.
- Membership status will be renewed biannually.
- CIDA members receive a copy of the biweekly Newsletter via the CIDA ListServ.
- CIDA members are notified about CIDA events and activities via the CIDA ListServ and are encouraged to participate.
- CIDA members will have an opportunity to serve on CIDA sub-committees to contribute to the advancement of CIDA’s mission.
- CIDA members are invited to give talks and present posters in seminars, workshops, retreats, and other gatherings organized by CIDA.
- CIDA membership is automatically conferred upon those who receive funding from CIDA’s Research Innovation Fund (RIF).
- Members who accept CIDA research funding agree to present their research during CIDA-sponsored events and to acknowledge CIDA in publications, presentations, reports, posters, etc., including an explicit acknowledgement of CIDA funding with wording such as “This work benefitted from the support of the Cornell Institute for Digital Agriculture (CIDA) under award “CIDA2020-xxxxxxxx1” and does not necessarily represent the views of CIDA”.
- CIDA members may access the CIDA logo here for use in slides, posters, and other presentations where CIDA-related work is presented.
- CIDA faculty members may be invited to serve as reviewers on RIF seed grants.
- CIDA members might request letters of support for DA-related grant proposals and project applications to external funding agencies.
- CIDA members might be invited to speak at events with University stakeholders and visitors with DA interests.
- CIDA members are encouraged to suggest CIDA initiatives to support networking and cross-college DA-related research, teaching, and extension activities.
