Students pursue capstone projects and careers in areas including:

- Sustainable food systems and agriculture
- Community-based natural resource management, Native American/indigenous natural resource issues, cultural resources
- Environmental and social justice
- Environmental education and conservation
- Sustainable urban communities
- City and county governments in the fields of planning, affordable housing, water conservation, and food justice
- Ecotourism