Selected bibliography: A list of survey works dealing with the course content may be found in a course bibliography. These works are supposed to be in the library general collection and are probably in other university libraries..

Annotated list of internet links is a list of links representing a brief sampling of sources of information related to the study of the historical geography of the United States and Canada. The list is categorized by some basic themes, concepts, and methods of inquiry. The list is by no means comprehensive; however, it does represent the results of numerous web searches on the subject. Many of the sites on the list are from universities, libraries, and museums, and normally contain source references to the material presented. Other sites on the list are from individuals or organizations that sometimes don't provide source information. Consider the source when citing information presented on the web.

- 2) What processes, physical, cultural, economic and political, have molded the present landscape? What are evidences of these processes and patterns today?
- 3) How do historical and cultural geographers contribute to applied geography to solve "real world" problems?
- 4) What may be predicted for the futures of the United States and Canada based on their cultural, economic, political and historical-geographic experiences?

For prospective teachers: This course is particularly recommended for those students (Geog 571) who are considering teaching in K-12 schools and for those majoring in related fields such as history, anthropology, social sciences, liberal studies or historic preservation.

Documented Disabilities:

Students who have a documented disability and anticipate needing accommodations in this course should make arrangements to see the instructor as soon as possible. They should also request that the Counselor for Students with Disabilities send a letter verifying the disability.

Plagiarism:

Students should properly acknowledge and document all sources of information (e.g. quotations, paraphrases, ideas) and use only the sources and resources authorized by the instructor. If there is any question about whether an act constitutes academic misconduct, it is the students' obligation to clarify the question with the instructor before committing or attempting to commit the act. Additional information about a common form of academic misconduct, plagiarism, is available at:

www.libweb.uoregon.edu/guides/plagiarism/students.

Academic Misconduct:

All students at all times will submit one's own work. Copying content from other students and submitting it as your own work is grounds for failing the class. The University Student Conduct Code (available at conduct.uoregon.edu) defines academic misconduct. Students are prohibited from committing or attempting to commit any act that constitutes academic misconduct. By way of example, students should not give or receive (or attempt to give or receive) unauthorized help on assignments or examinations without express permission from the instructor. However, authorized study groups open to all class members on a voluntary basis are encouraged.
