

Dear Ducks,

Are you graduating? If so, congratulations! Please read this important information below.

University Commencement Ceremony

The university's official commencement ceremony happens at the conclusion of spring term each year. This year's ceremony is the morning of Monday, June 17, 2019. All students graduating fall, winter, spring, or summer are invited to celebrate with their class and attend the 2019 spring ceremony. Visit commencement.uoregon.edu for full details, including information about the Duck Grad Parade.

Important University Commencement Information

Guest Tickets Required for University Commencement Ceremony

Due to limited capacity, graduates need to register to reserve their seat at the University Commencement Ceremony and secure tickets for their guests. Tickets for guests are free but are limited. Graduates will be able to reserve up to four guest tickets for the University Commencement Ceremony. The ceremony will also be livestreamed online and there will be overflow space to view the ceremony in the Ford Alumni Center Ballroom. Guest tickets are not required for department ceremonies (with the exception of the ceremonies for graduate/PhD business and the School of Music and Dance) where graduates formally cross the stage and are presented with diploma covers. Visit commencement.uoregon.edu for full details.

Registration and guest ticket reservations for this ceremony will go live on Monday, April 8, 2019, at 9:00 a.m.

Student Speakers

Are you interested in sharing your UO experience, memories, and insights with your graduating class at the University Commencement Ceremony? Consider applying to be a student speaker! One graduating undergraduate student and one graduating graduate student will be selected for the honor of addressing the grads and guests at the University Commencement Ceremony.

Apply for Your Degree

Any graduating student can participate in the spring commencement exercises, regardless of what term you actually complete your degree requirements. However, in order to make your degree official, you must apply for your degree online through DuckWeb for undergraduate students and GradWeb for graduate students. You can submit your application up to four terms before the term in which you plan to graduate. Undergraduate student degree applications for spring term are due by April 28, 2019. Graduate student degree applications for spring term are due by April 12, 2019. The Office of the Registrar can help answer degree-related questions.
