Course Description:
Gone are the days of truly isolated cultures and communities with their “unique” value systems and worldviews – if they ever really existed at all. Contemporary residents of planet earth live in an increasingly interconnected world where one’s values and actions influence and are influenced by others and by the emerging circumstances we find ourselves within. As we all become more aware of our place within a global community our ways of seeing the world and of evaluating what is “right” and “just” in it are bound to be challenged – by others with alternate values and by new dilemmas or concerns that arise as life unfolds on a wider global scale. In fact, with so much hybridity and cultural mixing, we may even find ourselves of “two (or more!) minds” on a particular issue depending on what values we embrace and prioritize at a given moment or for a given reason. And, we may change our minds over time to boot.

This situation compels us to reflect anew on eternal questions of “what is right?” and “what is just?” and to do so critically and reflexively so that we can be better prepared to understand contemporary global ethical challenges and to act in an informed and thoughtful fashion. This course is designed to help make this process possible. It provides an introduction to the field of “global ethics,” a new and productive way of understanding the ethics and challenges of our global community. The course examines the theories that inform the “global ethics” perspective in order to help us develop a “toolkit” that can be used to better understand and engage with specific real-world concerns and issues – human scale injustice, suffering and threats. The goal is to gain an appreciation for the range of ethical responses people have to challenges we face in our globalized world and to use that appreciation to foster the development of an informed ethical position that conditions our actions. The first part of the course explores theories, approaches and perspectives, while the latter portion examines how this conceptual terrain frames our engagement with real-world concerns such as poverty, war, bioethics, climate change and gender justice.

Learning Outcomes:
Upon completion of this course you will be able to:
   a) Articulate the key features of the “global ethics” approach.
   b) Discuss and evaluate the three key theoretical approaches to ethics: the moral, political and rights perspectives.
   c) Identify and appreciate the main ethical challenges we face today and the actions that are relevant to our engagement with them.

In addition, you will also have an increased the ability to:
   a) Critically analyze academically robust information, data and problems.
   b) Interpret and synthesize academic writing.
   c) Communicate effectively through written and oral communication.
Course Format:
This class integrates independent work with collective analysis. Key readings are assigned for each class period and should be completed prior to each meeting. Class sessions will involve a mixture of lecture and discussion. Guided by substantive outline slides, we will engage the material presented in each set of readings in order to draw out key insights and content. You should be prepared to answer framing questions and offer comments on the themes and examples you encounter in the readings. On occasion we will view video clips to aid our explorations. In discussion sections you will analyze concepts and issues relating to the lectures and assigned readings in a smaller, more intimate setting.

Readings/Texts:
Global Ethics: An Introduction by Heather Widdows (2011)
This book was selected as our core text because it offers a unique combination of theory and issues and does so in an accessible, engaging and productive way. First, the author has succeeded in presenting and synthesizing challenging philosophical ideas and insights about “values” and “ethics” in a non-technical, non-specialist way. Second, she is committed to the coupling of theory and practice – to seeing how and why ethics are relevant in the real world. Third, she is a true “globalist” in the sense that she is aware of and sensitive to the interconnections between people, places and processes in our contemporary world. Fourth, she is concerned with inequality and injustice on the local and global scales. Overall, the book combines traditional academic writing with more stimulating and user-friendly components like first person accounts and summary “boxes.” The book is available for purchase at the Duckstore. Discussion sections will involve engagement with supplemental readings and resources. These materials will be uploaded to or linked from Canvas.

Requirements:
Your performance in this course will be evaluated on the following components:

Mid Term Exam: You will complete an in-class essay style mid-term exam based on lectures, readings, films and discussions from the first part of the course. (40% of your grade)
Final Exam: You will complete a take at home essay style final exam based on lectures, readings, films and discussions from the last part of the course. (40% of your grade)
Minute Papers: Each week in your discussion section you will complete a short writing exercise called a “minute paper.” Within the first 5 minutes of each discussion you will quickly jot down some thoughts on that week’s assigned material. The ideal response will be about five sentences long and will focus on a specific theory, approach, concept or concern raised in the assigned material for that meeting. Be as substantive as you can in the short time/space you have. Vague or loose thoughts that are not linked to your assigned materials will not earn you full credit. These “minute papers” will be collected and graded by your GE. GEs will use a simple scale in grading them: 100 = perfect, 95 = very good, 85 = good, 75 = ok, 65 = poor, 0 = missing. We will use these assignments as attendance records as well, so if you are late to your section be sure to at least get your name on a piece of paper and get it submitted when your discussion leader collects the papers. Late in class submissions or submissions without attendance in section will be marked down by 20 points. We will drop your lowest score on these papers. (20% of your grade)

Policies:
Missed Assignments
No make ups will be offered for scheduled exams or assignments EXCEPT in the case of a significant illness, injury, or family emergency. If you should run into one of these exceptional situations, you are required to notify me by email BEFORE the scheduled exam or assignment. We will discuss your situation and any possible accommodations that might be warranted.

Attendance and Participation
In order to engage the assigned material thoroughly you should be present in lecture and section. Also, I encourage you to contribute to our classroom discussion periodically. Your comments need not be extensive – but they need to be relevant and informed. Sometimes your contribution might simply come in the form of an exceptionally engaged look or a notable reaction to a point I make or to a comment from one of your peers.
Classroom Culture
In order to create and maintain a focused and productive learning environment we need to agree on some basic elements of classroom etiquette. Ideas for things to include or address:

Cheating and Academic Dishonesty
All assignments in this class are designed to assess your individual knowledge and understanding of the material covered/presented in the course. Thus, cheating or plagiarism – in any form – will not be tolerated. The work you present must be entirely your own. All individuals involved in an act of academic dishonesty will fail the course and will be reported to the proper University contacts as required. I do not expect to encounter any problems in this area but feel you should be forewarned. The Student Conduct Code can be found here: https://policies.uoregon.edu/vol-3-administration-student-affairs/ch-1-conduct/student-conduct-code

Diversity, Inclusion and Campus Safety
Our campus is welcoming and responsive. The University is a place where people from different cultures and experiences learn together; understanding and respecting these differences are critical for the University to be a place of open-minded inquiry where, in challenging the boundaries of knowledge, we include and value all members of our community. Students who may have experienced prohibited discrimination or discriminatory harassment including, sexual discrimination, harassment or violence, can find a complete listing of confidential resources both on and off-campus here: https://safe.uoregon.edu/services. If you need support reach out and let us know.

Accessible Education
If you have a condition that inhibits learning or evaluation under customary circumstances, please let me know. In addition, please request a letter from the Accessible Education Center (541-346-1155, 164 Oregon Hall) that verifies your disability and states the accommodations that I can make. I will make any reasonable adjustments necessary to improve your learning experience. Information on Accessible Education support can be found here: https://aec.uoregon.edu/

Basic Needs
Any student who has difficulty affording groceries, lacks a safe and stable place to live, or is experiencing other problems meeting basic needs is urged to visit this helpful UO specific website: https://blogs.uoregon.edu/basicneeds/ and to contact the Office of the Dean of Students Office (346-3216) for support. Furthermore, if you are comfortable doing so, please let me know about your situation so I can help point you in the right direction for assistance.
