Abstract: This talk will delineate the evolution of the Chinese Mind from the Axial Age to the present in the perspective of world philosophy. 1) To capture the quintessence of traditional Chinese wisdom, we will focus on three most influential schools of thought in ancient China, namely, Confucianism, Taoism and Buddhism. 2) In modern times, traditional wisdom obtained a new lease of life through the interaction with Western culture. We will examine three waves of the introduction of Western thought into China since 17th century. 3) To conclude, we will underline some important features of the Chinese Mind, for instance, open minded, inclusive, eager to learn, and passionate for creation, etc., on the basis of the rich intellectual history of China.