Use these announcement scripts to keep your parents knowledgable about what your students are learning on The Voyage. You can send them in weekly newsletters, e-mail blasts, or print them to send home with students.

Lesson 1

Hi Parents! We are embarking on The Voyage with your children. We are so excited about this school-wide character journey that we are on together! We would love if you could partner with us at home, too. We are stronger when we work together!

Each unit contains an Anchor that explains a character attribute. Anchors help to hold a boat steady, just as they will be foundational for your child. This unit we are learning about Cooperation. Our Anchor is, “Cooperation is working well with others.” Each week we also have an Action Point where we will focus. Our Action Point for week one is, “Cooperation starts by listening to others.”

Remind your children each day about our Anchor and Action Point! Let’s work together and see Cooperation grow at school and at home. Thanks for being on The Voyage with us. We value your involvement in reinforcing this with your children!

Don’t forget to take a look at the Anchor Card for discussion starters and a family activity!

Lesson 2

Hi Parents! We’re having great time on The Voyage learning all about Cooperation. We hope that you have seen your children already grow in this character trait at home. As a reminder, our main Anchor is, “Cooperation is working well with others.” We have been encouraged to see Cooperation growing at school!

This week our Action Point focus is, “Cooperation is all about teamwork.” Teamwork is an important concept for children to learn for their interactions at home and at school. Please partner with us, and remind your children that this week they are working on cooperating as a team! Thanks for supporting us; we are so glad to be on The Voyage with you!

Hi Parents! This unit is sailing by on The Voyage. By now, your children have learned the importance of great listening and teamwork when it comes to Cooperation. They should know our Anchor, “Cooperation is working well with others.” Please continue to remind your child of this outside of school time, and encourage them when you see cooperation in action. It is transformational when they receive the same message in school and at home!

Our Action Point focus for this week is, “Cooperation helps you towards a common goal.” We’re planning on setting some goals together as a class this week. Maybe you can do the same thing at home! You are such an important part of The Voyage. Thank you for your partnership!

Hi Parents! We’ve had a great time learning and growing in cooperation with your children. It has been an incredible time on The Voyage so far! We have seen Cooperation spreading throughout our school, and we hope that you have seen it at home as well. Remember our Anchor: “Cooperation is working well with others.” Our goal is that even after this unit is done, your children will carry this character trait with them.

As we wrap up this unit, our Action Point focuses on one more key area: “Cooperation means sometimes you compromise.” We know compromise can be challenging for children, so our goal this week is to help them understand why it is so important. We would love it if you can remind them of this while they are at home! Thanks for joining us on The Voyage. We couldn’t do it without you!
