Bi+ Youth Project Intern

Location: Institute for Sexual and Gender Minority Health and Wellbeing, Northwestern University, 625 N Michigan Ave, Suite 1400, Chicago, IL 60611

Principal Investigator: Dr. Brian Feinstein

About the Bi+ Youth Project: The goals of the Bi+ Youth Project are: (1) to understand factors that drive engagement in sexual risk behavior and substance use among bisexual, pansexual, and queer (“bi+”) male youth ages 14-17; and (2) to develop and pilot test a sexual health promotion program for this population. First, we will conduct interviews with 60 racially/ethnically diverse bi+ male youth focused on their sexual identity, sexual decision-making, motivations for substance use, and intervention preferences. Then, we will develop a sexual health promotion program tailored to their unique needs and pilot test its feasibility, acceptability, and preliminary efficacy in a separate sample of 60 bi+ male youth.

Responsibilities: The Bi+ Youth Project intern will be expected to work approximately 10 hours/week for 6 months (for a maximum of 240 hours with the possibility of an extension). Their primary responsibility will be to assist with interview transcription. Additional responsibilities may include assisting with coding data, conducting literature searches, and developing study materials.

Qualifications: Minimum qualifications include: strong communication skills; strong organizational skills; ability to work independently; basic computer skills; and the ability to work on the downtown Northwestern campus. Preferred qualifications include: experience in sexual minority health research; experience in qualitative research (e.g., transcribing and coding interviews); and experience conducting literature searches.

What you'll learn: The Bi+ Youth Project intern will gain experience in qualitative research, including interview transcription and possibly coding data. They will also learn about research on bisexual health.

Compensation: The Bi+ Youth Project intern will be compensated $16/hour.

Interested? Please send a CV to Dr. Brian Feinstein at brian.feinstein@northwestern.edu. Questions are welcome as well!