FACE COVERING GUIDELINES

Wear a face covering in common areas.

Common areas include hallways, offices, and bathrooms. The only exception is if a person is working alone in a private office.

Maintain a distance of at least six feet from other people.

Wear a face covering in research spaces.

The only exceptions are if a person is working alone in a private space or working with hazardous materials that may concentrate on the face covering.

Continue to maintain a distance of at least six feet from other people.

Contact Research Safety if you have questions.

Face coverings are NOT a substitute for social distancing. Always remember to keep at least a six-foot distance from others and wash your hands often.

Phased Return to Campus

northwestern.edu/campus-return