Embodiment and Social Work

To cite this article: (2019) Embodiment and Social Work, Australian Social Work, 72:3, 386-386, DOI: 10.1080/0312407X.2019.1607147

To link to this article: https://doi.org/10.1080/0312407X.2019.1607147

Published online: 14 Jun 2019.

Submit your article to this journal

Article views: 106

View Crossmark data
CALL FOR PAPERS

Embodiment and Social Work

The theme of this Special Issue of Australian Social Work is focused on the many ways embodiment is understood in social work practice. Embodiment broadly encompasses the ways in which biological, political, historical, economic, and social factors impact on, and become “embedded in” individuals’ and society’s experience and identity. These factors are also embodied by social workers in their everyday practice.

The special issue will include a broad spectrum of papers. Submissions are invited that focus on epistemological and theoretical developments, empirical studies, policy perspectives, and curriculum initiatives in social work education.

Possible Topics Include:

- The embodiment of poverty and inequality
- Intersectionality and embodiment, including race and ethnicity, gender, class, sexual orientation
- Indigenous and non-Western perspectives
- Trauma, historical trauma, secondary trauma, and evidence-based somatically-based practices
- Embodied pedagogies and knowledge perspectives
- Embodied dimensions of climate change, displacement, detention, state violence, and nationalism
- Embodiment, empathy, emotional labour, and the therapeutic relationship
- Debates in neuroscience and epigenetics

The Guest Editors for this Special Issue are: Jo Mensinga, PhD, MA(Research), BSW, lecturer, James Cook University, Queensland, Australia (jo.mensinga@jcu.edu.au); Professor Loretta Pyles, BA, MA, PhD, School of Social Welfare, State University of New York, Albany, USA (lpyles@albany.edu); and Professor Carolyn Noble, PhD, MSW, BSW (UNSW), Former Associate Dean and Foundation Professor of Social Work at ACAP in Sydney and Emerita Professor of Social Work at Victoria University, Melbourne (Carolyn.Noble@acap.edu.au).

Guidelines for Submission

Authors may submit an original article (4000–6000 words), or a Practice, Policy, and Perspectives article (1500–4000 words). For guidance on how to submit, please see www.tandfonline.com/rasw and the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (APA), 6th Edition.

Deadline for Submission

All manuscripts should be submitted via Scholar One Manuscripts: http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rasw, no later than July 2020. Authors are encouraged to contact the Guest Editors to discuss their intended submissions.

© 2019 Australian Association of Social Workers