CITL Faculty Fellows Program 2022-23: Sustainably Supporting Early Career Students

Facilitated by Assistant Faculty Director Robin Dunkin and CITL Founding Director Jody Greene

Application deadline: May 15, 2022

The Center for Innovations in Teaching and Learning (CITL) at UC Santa Cruz invites senate and non-senate faculty to apply to join our sixth cohort of Faculty Fellows.

CITL Faculty Fellows constitute themselves as a community of peers engaging with higher education research, reflecting on their teaching, exploring campus policy and practice with relation to issues facing students and faculty, and supporting the culture of teaching and learning on our campus.

During the 2022-2023 academic year we will be thinking broadly about how we support early career students in courses, in the broader curriculum, and in the university as whole. We will examine programs from other institutions, hear from experts in the field, examine the literature in this research area, talk with students about their early career experience, and as always, consider the faculty role in this experience through a lens of sustainable workloads.

Fellows will be expected to attend 4 meetings per quarter (Friday lunchtime), including hands-on workshops, reading-group-style discussions, visits by campus experts in research and practice related to the early career experience, and occasional special events involving outside speakers. The Faculty Fellows will have the opportunity, if they so desire, to invite speakers to address the Fellows group and/or the campus as a whole and to host events, town halls, and initiatives related to our thematic focus.

We encourage faculty from all disciplines to join us to ensure a rich, vibrant and productive discussion throughout the program. Previous faculty fellows are encouraged to apply to be senior fellows.

Fellows will be eligible for up to $2000 in reimbursement to pursue professional development for teaching and mentoring, including attending national conferences or certificate programs. Fellows may also use their funds to develop or expand a project or program on campus related to teaching, learning, mentoring, or student success.

Application Information
Please submit the following materials only, by 5:00pm on Wednesday, May 15 to citl@ucsc.edu:

Your name, department, and academic title

A statement of no more than one page detailing why you are interested in being a CITL Faculty Fellow and why the 2022-2023 theme is of particular interest to you.