Center for Cross-Cultural Research Undergraduate Student Scholarship

A $1500 tuition scholarship is available each year for one Undergraduate Student Affiliate of the Center for Cross-Cultural Research (CCCR). Details and application instructions for this scholarship follow.

Purpose: The purpose of this scholarship is to support the development of undergraduate students in learning about the role of culture in the discipline of psychology. Research activity is not required, as we see this as an initial encouragement for engaging with the study of culture and psychology. Thus, this learning process may be occurring in coursework, research experience, and involvement in Center activities. Students who are traditionally underrepresented in educational and research contexts (e.g., ethnic and racial minorities; sexual or gender minorities; first-generation college students) are particularly encouraged to apply.

Eligibility: Current WWU CCCR Undergraduate Student Affiliates, who have attended Center activities for at least two quarters, and who will be a WWU student for at least two quarters in the subsequent school year.

Application: Applicants should provide a 2-3 page essay detailing:
- their involvement in CCCR activities for at least two quarters
- how the CCCR has impacted their growth as a student of psychology and culture
- how the scholarship would benefit their continued exploration of psychology and culture

Applicants must also include:
- a resume
- confirmation of their continued enrollment at WWU in the subsequent year, for which the scholarship would apply.
- a brief letter of support from a faculty Affiliate of the Center, attesting to their involvement in the Center.

Review: Applications are submitted via email by May 1 to the Director of the CCCR. The Director and Advisory Board will review all applicants and select awardees. Awards will be presented at PsychFest.
