Math Club Student Talk

On Symmetric Dice

Spencer Cattalani

Wednesday February 26, 2020
7PM
Math Tower P-131

Abstract

We examine the problem of what makes dice interesting through an algebraic perspective. In particular, we look at a naïve symmetry condition on the numbering of the faces, and how that constrains which polyhedra may be numbered in such a way. We then compare this to a very similar condition, with much different results.